CIRCUIT INFO:
Opened in 2010, Automotodrom Slovakiaring is Europe's newest circuit and one of the biggest. It is located 60 miles south of Brno, and is similar to Brno in nature. It has been built in true "Cathedral of Speed" style, and it is vast – 5.92km long, 16 turns ranging from very fast to moderate hairpin speed. There is a 900m home straight and no less than 3 other similarly fast straights. There are no tight hairpins or chicanes, and while the surrounding countryside is fairly flat, 4 artificial hills have been created to add to the experience – and it is possible to get your bike airborne, (albeit very briefly) on one of these if you're fast enough! Slovakiaring is used widely for many European championships, and for World Superbike testing – and when your track time is done, you will find that the historic and beautiful city of Bratislava also has much to offer. As with Brno in the neighbouring Czech Republic, food and drink, etc. is very cheap in Slovakia (much cheaper than Spain & Portugal for example) – this will vastly reduce your overall costs and means that a trip to this "must-do" venue really does offer incredible value for money!
